

BENNY KAUFMAN ASSISTS KID WILLIAMS TO PROVE HE IS THE REAL BOSS OF THE BANTAMS

WILLIAMS'S EASY VICTORY OVER KAUFMAN SHOWS THAT ERTLE IS ONLY HOKUM CHAMPION

Bantam Titleholder Wallops Johnny's Conqueror All Over Ring at Olympia A. A. and Wins by Several Miles

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL

JOHNNY ERTLE hasn't a leg to stand on when it comes to claiming the bantamweight championship of the world. For more than a year this youthful person has been parading around the country wearing a crown which he said was taken, purloined or swiped from the brow of one Kid Williams after a battle in which the Kid finished in second place. However, the chatter and the crown and everything else proved to be very much hokum last night at the Olympia when the same Kid Williams walloped the daylight out of Mr. Benjamin Kaufman, our city, in six furious rounds.

The victory scored last night was a weight champion's reaction on the alleged ability of Mr. Ertle, the claimant, as Kaufman knocked the tar out of Johnny in the same ring a couple of weeks ago. It is easy to figure out—simply a matter of deduction—and we strongly advise that you try it on your piano.

Williams Makes Good But to return to whatever we were writing about. Kid Williams appeared among us last night and put on an act that removed all doubts as to his ability as a boxer. The 5000 spectators and Pat Moran—for it was indeed he—were satisfied with the performance and from now on Williams will be known with respect in exclusive boxing circles. It was rumored, however, that Pat Moran's sympathies were with Kaufman because the Phillies also lost yesterday.

Benny was left at the post when he attempted to start against the titleholder. He was outpunched, outgambled and outwitted by Williams, although the local boy made a creditable showing for the first round. Kaufman adopted rushing tactics, and when the bell clanged for the first stanza Benny was on top of the champion, showing a volley of lefts and rights on the head and body. Williams was forced to the ropes, and it looked as if the Baltimorean. The Kid quickly got his bearings, however, and spent the remainder of the round in doing what he does best. He solved it near the end of the second round, and from then on Kaufman could be referred to only as "among those present."

Champ Is Versatile As the match progressed Williams stabbed his opponent with his left jab until Benny's face assumed the rosy hue of a sincere sunset. Then the champ would shoot a couple of hard rights to the body, just to show that he was versatile. Kaufman was aware of the fact, but Williams wanted to prove it to the cash customers.

After the second act Benny's attack resembled that of a rookier. He was trying to tackle a guy like "Gravy" Williams. He would lower his head, throw out his arms and lunge forward, only to be met with a stiff arm with a clenched fist in a glove at the other end. Our local pride felt the glove more than the stiff arm. It was an object lesson on how football should NOT be played. Benny shall not attempt to criticize boxing, because we know no more about it than Benny.

In the fifth and sixth sessions Williams reminded Kaufman couple of times with hard rights to the head, but Benny never was in danger. He was too busy stopping the champion's punches to even think of it.

Thrilling Adventure There were several preliminaries, we are told, but as we did not see them, Mr. Louis H. Jaffe has promised to pinch write for us. We missed the early part of the show because that kind-faced, sweet-voiced, tender-hearted Baron of Liverpool insisted that we ride to the Olympia in his offensive-car. It was a good-car, but after leaving the drydock it developed a hectic flush and a hollow cough, and several other things which prevented extensive or speedy traveling. After pushing the car three miles in two hours, we left it leaning against a friendly fence somewhere near Darby, where we were rescued by Mr. Lew Bailey, who Forded us back to town. Mr. Jaffe has the floor.

Diggins Shows Well The best bout of the evening was between Young Diggins and Frankie Quinlan. The former was a winner, but he was forced to go at top speed in the latter rounds, as Quinlan earned an early advantage. Both boys boxed fast, slugged willingly in the clinches and there wasn't an idle moment in the eighteen minutes.

Wally Nelson made a creditable showing under the circumstances in his match with Gusie Lewis. He substituted for Mickey Brown. Gusie won with plenty to spare, but he was kept on the alert throughout, as Wally's right-hand wallops were coming thick and fast at times. Wally crossed wild wallops on Lewis's chin, rocking him, but Gus came back each time and more than evened up for Nelson's flashes.

The semifinal was a front. Lefty Tyler substituted for Young Palmer and it was apparent that Sailor Smiley was about to have a nice little knockout party when both Referee O'Brien and one of Lefty's seconds decided that Tyler had showed enough action for $30. A towel was tossed into the ring and O'Brien sent the boys to their respective corners.

Denny Hughes won the opener, defeating Frankie Conway.

SCRAPS ABOUT SCRAPPERS Teddy Moloney announced this morning that his brother John was to give a fight in his third professional scrap, which will be staged in the Madison Square Garden. The winner of West Philly will be the party of the second part. Moloney said he looked up for spars with Young Alton in the early future.

The star scrap of the christening card at the new Point Breeze A. C. tonight will bring to the ring Austin Epiphany's Darby Caspar and

FIRST GAME OF WORLD'S SERIES AT BRAVES' FIELD

Opening for Boston Ordered to Protect National League Winner

WANT TO AVERT SCANDAL

By CHANDLER D. RICHTER In order to protect the owners of the pennant-winning team of the National League from the usual world's series ticket scandal and to assure the fans allotted tickets for the games to be played in either Philadelphia or Brooklyn that they will get them, the National Commission has decided the first game of the world's series is to be played in Boston.

It is customary to toss a coin, the winner of the toss having the privilege of selecting the field for the first battle, and in the past the winner always has selected the home field; but realizing that the National League race may not be decided until the final day of the season, the National Commission has taken the matter into its own hands and will order the first game for Boston. It is also certain that the second game also will be played in Boston, regardless of whether the Phillies or Dodgers eventually win out in the National League.

Members of the National Commission deny that they have already agreed upon this plan, but we have it from an insider that such an agreement will be made tonight unless the Phillies lose both games to the Braves today and Brooklyn wins from New York, which virtually would eliminate Brooklyn as a contender.

While the tickets have been printed for games both in this city and Brooklyn, neither club has sent any out and will not do so until the pennant is clinched. The commission realizes that the race is not decided until Thursday it would be impossible to get the tickets to the purchasers in time for a Saturday game in either Brooklyn or Philadelphia, which would stir up a ticket scandal.

Phillies Had Ticket Trouble It will be remembered that last fall the Philadelphia management did not get its tickets until two days before the series started, and, despite the fact that a full force of clerks worked day and night for two days, many of the lucky persons who were awarded tickets and had paid for them failed to receive them in time for the first game in this city.

Johnny Tillman is still in town and he plans to remain here for the balance of the season. His stonemason, Johnny Conhill, is expected to arrive from Boston in a few days.

Several Philadelphia boxers may be included in a string to invade Australia next fall. Tom Andrews, of Milwaukee, contemplates a sojourn with American boxers. He was in town last week looking over local talent.

The first appearance of Ritchie Mitchell, of Milwaukee, in the East will be made Saturday afternoon at the Strawbridge & Clothier field, 622 and Walnut streets. Episcopal has great hopes of winning the Interacademic League championship this year, and the candidates have been working hard, under the direction of Coach Washburn, for the last two weeks.

A year ago it generally was believed that Episcopal would be strengthened greatly when the De Lancy School athletes became eligible, but the only De Lancy player who is certain to hold down a regular berth on the team is Hamilton at center. Captain Hunt expects that his team will prove an easy victor over Woodbury, but is taking no chances, and the strongest possible combination will be put in the field this afternoon.

Woodbury's team is composed of five veterans and six recruits. Little is known of the Jerseymen's strength, although they crossed over from the other side of the Delaware early this afternoon full of confidence.

The teams will line up as follows: Episcopal..... left end..... Woodbury..... right end..... Episcopal..... left tackle..... Woodbury..... right tackle..... Episcopal..... center..... Woodbury..... center..... Episcopal..... right guard..... Woodbury..... right guard..... Episcopal..... left guard..... Woodbury..... left guard..... Episcopal..... left halfback..... Woodbury..... left halfback..... Episcopal..... fullback..... Woodbury..... fullback.....

Roller Throws Henderson on Mat ALTON, Pa., Oct. 3.—Dr. R. F. Roller, of New York, rolled off Matt Henderson, of Altoona, in the masked match here last night. Roller was the aggressor throughout. He won the first fall in 10 seconds, the second in 15 seconds and in seven minutes. Henderson did not get a fall and seemed to lack his old-time speed.

Three Ways How Phillies Can Win Out for Pennant

By taking the second game of a twin bill from the Phils yesterday, while Brooklyn defeated the Giants, the Braves enabled the Robins to increase their lead in the National League pennant classic to a full game. The standing this morning follows:

Table with 3 columns: Team, W, L, P.C. Phillies: 92, 59, .60872; Brooklyn: 90, 59, .60402

The severity of the blow is evidenced by the following possibilities: Should Brooklyn lose all of its three remaining games with the Giants, the Phillies must take two out of four from the Braves to win. The standing would then be:

Table with 3 columns: Team, W, L, P.C. Phillies: 92, 61, .601307; Brooklyn: 92, 62, .697403

If Brooklyn wins one out of three the champions must take three out of four to win. The standing would then be:

Table with 3 columns: Team, W, L, P.C. Phillies: 93, 60, .607843; Brooklyn: 93, 61, .603896

If Brooklyn takes two out of three the Morannen must capture all four games. The standing would then be:

Table with 3 columns: Team, W, L, P.C. Phillies: 94, 59, .614579; Brooklyn: 94, 60, .610390

Should Brooklyn take all three games they would win, regardless of what the Phils accomplish. These are the sad figures:

Table with 3 columns: Team, W, L, P.C. Brooklyn: 95, 59, .616583; Phillies: 94, 59, .614579

PENN CREWS TO GET OUT ON SCHUYLKILL TOMORROW

Crew practice by Penn oarsmen will be started on the Schuylkill tomorrow. The purpose of the practice is to teach the men the fundamentals of oarsmanship and keep the veterans in good physical trim. Captain Ad Well received a letter yesterday from Joe Wright, the Penn coach last year, stating that he would be down from Canada next Saturday to direct the practice. The Penn tutor has secured a four weeks' vacation from his position in Toronto in order to personally instruct his pupils. Wright intends to divide his men into class crews and top off the autumn practice with an interclass race.

HOT OFF THE GRIDIRON

W. F. Waldman, a candidate for the freshman football captain of the University of Pennsylvania, was hurt in yesterday's practice. Doctor Hancock and Dr. Robert Torrey, the former Penn star and captain, were called to the aid of Waldman, but they found no bones broken. Waldman was unable to move his legs and has lost all feeling in the upper part of his body. The doctors were called to the University Hospital. The physicians were somewhat baffled by the case. It is not known definitely whether he sustained a fracture of the skull or concussion of the brain. Waldman was injured while tackling the dummy. The entire freshman team was put through this work by Coach Joe Jordan.

With every man except one in splendid condition as the result of their week's training at Hottelville, the football squad of the Pennsylvania Military College appeared yesterday for the first time this year. The coaches were disappointed when Ed Crump, last year's star center and the mainstay of the team, reported an ankle sprain. Crump was last reported sprained when tackled by Martin in the last practice held at Hottelville Saturday.

SWARTHMORE, Pa., Oct. 3.—Manager Frank Kimber of the Swarthmore Preparatory school football team has announced his schedule as completed for the year. The schedule for the local team meets at St. Joseph's College, which was the only team that defeated them last season. The final score standing is 9 to 6. Most of the regulars of last season are set to Swarthmore Prep this year, but Coach Larry Roth, assisted by David Harry and R. A. Bunn, candidates, and hopes to repeat the success of the 1915 team. VILLANOVA, Pa., Oct. 3.—Because of their hard battle with Rutgers on Saturday, Coach Houtz gave his men only a light workout yesterday, spending a large part of the time in coaching the freshmen. The freshmen were in a stiff game the previous Saturday, but the team of the day was running down the field under Houtz, with Chambers and J. Boon doing the kicking. Chambers took care of this part of the game on Saturday, and his work was appreciated by the Rutgers players.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 3.—Ted Jones, the Yale football head coach, sent virtually every veteran player into the line-up for a sharp scrimmage drill yesterday. Scrimmaging on the Monday after a Saturday game is unorthodox at Yale, but Jones is running down the field under Houtz, with Chambers and J. Boon doing the kicking. Chambers took care of this part of the game on Saturday, and his work was appreciated by the Rutgers players.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 3.—The Princeton football team was in the gymnasium yesterday, where they were practicing with the Holy Cross on Saturday and allowed several of the regulars to lay out heavy work. SHORT AND SNAPPY PRACTICE DRILLS FOR PENN ELEVEN

Red and Blue Squad Not to Work Late Under Electric Light

WITHEROW QUILTS TEAM

By NEIL MATHEWS Captain Penn Football Team. Classes started today, and when classes start at Penn football practice is badly hampered, for the worthy professors are firmly convinced that Pennsylvania is primarily an institution of learning, and, therefore, they steadfastly refuse to allow football to interfere. Perhaps they are right; perhaps they are not. At any rate, the result is the same. Practice is delayed.

Last year we got around that by practicing under arc lights until 6:30. This year we will surmount the difficulty in a much easier way—by having shorter, snappier sessions. We feel that we have mastered the rudiments of the game, and we have now to perfect our team play. By having shorter practice we are able to put more snap into our work. If he knows that the session is to be a short one a man will play hard, but if he knows that the session is to be a long one he will save some of his energy for the showers. He, therefore, will be a sluggish player, always saving himself for the next play. Bob Fowell will not have such a man on the field.

Fowell says that when a man is dragging himself around in a limp condition he eventually will get hurt, so when he sees that a man looks tired he sends him directly to the showers. So the old classroom bug-bear is going to be surmounted not by a later practice session, but by a shorter one. Fowell is well pleased with the progress of the team. We did not have a great deal of work yesterday, but today we are going to be drilled in offensive tactics. We showed a stiff defense Saturday, but our attack was not as strong as it should have been. The plays were not weak, by any means, but the individuals were not smooth in executing the plays. That is to be the work this week—to prepare an offense that will crush Franklin and Marshall next Saturday.

Kenneth Witherow, the Altoona boy, the biggest man on the team, has quit because his parents object to his playing. Witherow played on the freshman team three years ago and was on the varsity squad for two years.

FATIMA A Sensible Cigarette. Such men seek smoke-comfort. WHEN YOU stop to realize the number of sound, conservative men who have changed over to Fatimas in the last six months, it surely indicates that Fatimas must offer something no other cigarette can offer. Perhaps you haven't thought of it this way: Do you know any other cigarette that is always cool and comfortable? Do you know any other cigarette beside Fatimas that leaves a man feeling fine and "fit" even after a long-smoking day? It is these qualities that make Fatimas truly sensible.
